

IRAN

Iran, a Middle Eastern country south of the Caspian Sea and north of the Persian Gulf, is three times the size of Arizona. It shares borders with Iraq, Turkey, Azerbaijan, Turkmenistan, Armenia, Afghanistan and Pakistan. It is the second largest nation in the Middle East and the 18th-largest in the world. The northern part of Iran is covered by dense rain. The eastern part consists mostly of desert basins such as the Dasht-e Kavir, Iran's largest desert, in the north-central portion of the country and the Dasht-e Lut, in the east, as well as some salt lakes.

Tehran is the capital and largest city, serving as the cultural, commercial, and industrial center of the nation. Iran is a major regional and middle power, exerting considerable influence in international energy security and the world economy through its large reserves of fossil fuels, which include the largest natural gas supply in the world and the fourth largest proven oil reserves. The Currency used is Rial (IRR)

In Iran, you will find a balance that is nonexistent in some destinations on Earth. The country offers a comfortable area where newbie travelers can mix with seasoned ones, but it is also exotic at the same time. Iran has a rich history brought by the Persian Empire, and there are still signs of that culture in today's contemporary version. Tiled-domes, mud – brick alleys and ziggurats create a beautiful contrast against majestic mountain ranges and oases in the horizon. Despite the political trouble, the Iranians remain to be hospitable people who will help guests in experiencing the best of Iranian culture.
